

Practise using the correct word to describe quantities!

i Use "some" in positive sentences and questions where you expect the answer to be "Yes". For example: He has some good friends. OR: Can I have some apples, please? (You know there are apples for sale).

Use "any" in negative sentences and most questions. For example: He hasn't got any friends. OR: Do you have any apples? (You are not sure if they have apples).

?

I brought you _____ tomatoes from our garden!

- some
- any

?

Do you have _____ idea how this exercise works?

- some
- any

?

I am not ready. Could I have _____ more time, please?

- any
- some

?

He hasn't got _____ homework today.

- any
- some

?

Could you pass me _____ paper, please?

- some
- any

?

I don't have _____ money left this month.

- any
- some

?

I really want _____ new drawing pens!

- any
 some

?

Do you have _____ plans for the weekend?

- some
 any

?

Oh no, we don't have _____ chocolate left?

- some
 any

?

I haven't eaten _____ apples today!

- some
 any

?

My Mum wants me to buy _____ cake for this afternoon.

- some
 any

?

Could I have _____ cream on my cake, please?

- any
 some

?

She doesn't have _____ tickets left for the afternoon show.

- any
 some

?

Could I have _____ ice cream from the freezer?

- any
 some

?

Yes, we have _____! Take one out for you and one for your sister.

- any
 some