

Come practise the present perfect continuous!

i We use the present perfect continuous when we want to say that something started in the past and is still continuing now.

The present perfect continuous is formed with "has/have been" + "the ing-form of the verb" (present participle).
For example: I have been watching the TV series for a month now.

?

She _____ been looking forward to the show.

- have
- has
- was

?

I have not been _____ football since my injury.

- play
- played
- playing

?

Aunt Lisbeth _____ been helping us since yesterday.

- has
- are
- have

?

It has not _____ raining all month.

- been
- be
- are

?

Mr Thomson has been _____ for an hour.

- talking
- talked
- talk

?

For how long have you been _____ in the canteen?

- ate
- eating
- eat

?

Jaden _____ been watching TV for two hours.

- has
- was
- have

?

How long have you _____ learning French?

- be
- been
- are

?

I have been _____ handstands for three weeks now.

- practised
- practise
- practising

?

I have been _____ my trip to Italy since March.

- organise
- organised
- organising

?

He _____ been reading the Narnia trilogy for the past weeks.

- was
- has
- have

?

_____ you been listening? I don't think you got it.

- Has
- Have
- Was

?

I am tired. I have been _____ a lot.

- revise
- revised
- revising

?

She has been _____ this song for months now! I can't stand it anymore!

- singing
- sing
- sang