

Let's practise the 1st conditional!

i We use the first conditional to talk about future actions that can only happen when a certain condition is fulfilled. This condition is told in the if-clause.

That means we use the 1st conditional for:

future consequences - If I start a part-time job, I will earn my own money.

warnings and threats - If you do that, I won't talk to you ever again!

negotiations - If you do my chores today, I will do yours tomorrow.

How to form the 1st conditional:

Use the present tense in the if-sentence and will/won't or the imperative in the main sentence. The sentence can either start with the if-sentence or finish with it. For example: I will do your chores tomorrow if you do mine today OR If you do my chores today, I will do yours tomorrow.

?

_____ you call me later, I will explain you the homework.

- I fs
- Will
- If

?

If Sandra trains every day, she _____ be very fit.

- be
- will
- is

?

I _____ tell you about it if Jane says it's a secret.

?

If she _____ help me, I won't know what to do.

?

_____ I have enough money, I will buy new trainers tomorrow.

?

She _____ lose money if she continues gaming.

?

If I get new running shoes, I _____ go running more often.

- who
- will
- was

If you don't listen to me, you _____ understand my point!

- wasn't
- will
- won't

They won't come tonight _____ we watch a horror movie. They don't like them.

If we have flour left, I _____ bake a cake!

If I _____ time later, I will play a board game with you.

- had
- has
- have

I _____ make Pizza tonight if you go to the shop and buy some cheese.

- will
- won't
- was

If you _____ turn that music down, I will tell Mum!

She _____ tell you all about it if you ask her!

If I go to grandma's, I _____ come home until late. Her house is so far away.

- will
- won't
- was